NB this workshop was filmed right at the start of our first national lockdown in the UK! It has a 'homemade' feel, offering a warm and friendly workshop experience.

This workshop will guide you through the process of abstraction in response to remembered feelings and visual information gained through walking. You will learn how to make a sensory response to the environment and to use colour and mark as expression.

From tuning in your visual and emotive mind when walking, to sensory drawings, colour studies and final pieces - this course will arm you with the tools to explore a whole world of abstraction. You can complete it in a day, or over several days - whatever works best for you!
